Konstruktywna otwartość systemu filozoficznego jako warunek jego przydatności teologicznej à propos pewnej idei Jeana-Luca Mariona

Constructive openness of the philosophical system as the condition of its suitability for theology

Summary

The article attempts to describe some important features of Jean-Luc Marion's conceptualization of relation between philosophy and theology. The main question of present inquiry is the examination of theology's own exigencies in respect to philosophy. The analyze shows that one of the fundamental characteristic of the philosophy which makes it appropriate for theology is its openness. Philosophical system has to be able to continual evolution in order to donate theology useful tools of speculation and argumentation. This openness is the synonym of the constructive abilities inherent to concreto philosophical system.
